

Reminder: Please Provide Your Input to Evanston's Climate Action Plan

The City's next Climate Action and Resilience Planning process (CARP) is in full swing and is still looking for citizen input. The CARP team has developed a web form that consists of six questions for community members to provide feedback on how to best combat climate change and prepare for the impacts in Evanston. Access the form here.

Look for CGE at Upcoming Evanston Farmers' Markets

CGE will have a booth at Farmers' Markets this summer on Saturday, June 16 and Saturday, July 14. Come by and say hi and find out what we do and how you can get involved in helping Evanston reach its sustainability goals.

Welcome to Our Newest Board Members!

Following its May annual meeting, CGE is pleased to welcome five new members to our board:

Bea Echeverria is a founder of Washington Elementary's Green Team, as well as the DGS Green Team.

Peter Laundy brings his expertise in graphic design and a focus on natural habitat.

Barbara Jane Miller helps lead Go Evanston, which focuses on transportation and recently joined CGE.

We are particularly pleased that for the first time we also have two student members from Evanston Township High School (ETHS): James Henderson and Haley Siculan.

Evanston's Sustainability Coordinator Named To Global List of Young Environmental Leaders

Kumar Jensen, Sustainability Coordinator for the City of Evanston, has been named to the 2018 GreenBiz "30 Under 30" list of young environmental leaders. Jensen and the others were nominated by readers from around the world and selected by the GreenBiz editorial team for "demonstrating the world-changing promise of sustainability in their everyday work." CGE extends its congratulations and gratitude for all his great work! Read the greenbiz article here
